

WSU PUYALLUP HIGHLIGHT

September 8, 2005

Puyallup scientist invited to participate in Probabilistic Risk Assessment Workshop in Washington D.C.

John Stark participated in a Probabilistic Risk Assessment Workshop, as an invited expert, put on by the Society of Toxicology in Washington D.C. this summer. The purpose of the workshop was to develop a document outlining the state-of-the-art of probabilistic risk assessment and future directions.

Approximately 200 people attended the international workshop to learn future directions and ways of improving the risk assessment process.

The Society of Toxicology is the leading global force in advancing science to enhance human, animal and environmental health through the science of toxicology.
